Week-End in Ukraine's Capital

By A. KOZHANOV

KIEV, Ukrainian SSR-Kiev has long been famous for its beautiful environs. The fine old parks which stretch for several kilometers along the steep right bank of the Dnieper are the favorite haunts of city dwellers in the summer months. On the opposite side of Kiev are the zoological gardens, the Pushkin and Polytechnical parks which also attract thousands of visitors.

Many prefer to go to the Goloseyev woods with its lovely lakes or to the botanical Mariinsk Park I heard my name called and gardens, a new, post-war addition to Kiev's suburban attractions.

Last Sunday the hot weather drove at least half of Kiev's inhabitants to the shade of these parks and gardens and to the Dnieper bathing beaches, Early in the week posters appeared in town announcing additional transport facilities to the suburbs at the weekend, and on Saturday the radio invited listeners to the numerous mass picnics and outings that were being organized.

I left the house early on Sunday morning and joined the crowds streaming toward tram and bus stops. Even at that early hour it was difficult to find a free taxi. I decided to take a trip down to the main bathing beach and soon found that at least 30,000 people had had the same idea, although the bathing season had just begun.

By noon all the rowboats, motorboats, sailboats and yachts available for hire at a low fee at the 11 boat stations situated along the banks of the river were out on the at home."

The aquatic sports stations had just opened a few days before and at one of them I met Fyodor Mokienko, vice-chairman of the city soviet, on a tour of inspection. He seemed quite satisfied with what Mokienko told me that all the other summer parks and recreation grounds were open and that the suburban river passenger fleet was twice as big as last year. The city soviet had allocated more than three million rubles for additional equipment for Kiev's country houses. Extra suburban trains were parks. One million rubles had been spent to running on all lines to cope with the improve bathing beaches. Every Sunday the crowds. I ascertained that the suburban soviet adds about 100 buses, trolleybuses and tramcars to take care of the additional free rest homes maintained by the trade strain on the city's transport facilities. Fares unions. on suburban steamers and motor launches are cut by 50% on Sundays. Restaurants, buffets and stalls function in all the parks. Some 600 of these catering establishments were opened last Sunday and by next Sunday there will be more than a thousand of

I dropped into the Kiev shipping office and the clerk on duty told me that 15 plants and factories had chartered boats for their workers that day. Some of the boats had gone to Kanyev, about 100 km. outside of Kiev, where Taras Shevchenko, the great Ukrainian poet, is buried.

At two o'clock in the afternoon concerts and other entertainment began in the suhear programs of symphony music and solo performances by musicians from the Kiev Philharmonic Society. Entrance to these parks, including the open-air concerts, is free of charge. As I was strolling down a path in the 87%.

turned round to see an old friend of mine, Mikhail Tradensky, a worker from one of Kiev's shoe factories. He had come with his wife and two daughters. Tradensky made the headlines for having completed his fiveyear plan and is now working on his program for the second year of the next fiveyear plan. He told me that last Sunday he had spent the day picnicking with his shopmates on Zhukov Island on the Dnieper, This time, he said, he had wanted to hear a concert of symphony music conducted by Nathan Rakhlin. The Tradenskys had come to the park at noon and now, having lunched in one of the restaurants, they were all set to take in a concert.

"We intend to have dinner here too after the concert," said Tradensky.

"Splurging, I see," I remarked.

"Not really," was the rejoinder. "It won't cost us any more to eat here than it would

The younger folk veered as usual to the swings, merry-go-rounds, Ferris wheel and other attractions.

The zoological gardens too were more crowded than usual. The gardens were badly wrecked during the occupation but ment would mean to work without any adare now almost completely restored and considerably expanded. More than 30,000 visited them this particular Sunday. A rigid terms proposed by the United States. similar number spent the day in the Pushkin
Park nearby which has an exhibition of Park nearby which has a nearby whic rest homes outside of town or in private traffic handled over 70,000 passengers, ports from the United States and impose enough. It marks the first triumph of fruit-

Key Branches Spurt Ahead

(Continued From Page 1)

priority rights in the provision of equipment and raw materials as the iron and steel industry. Local government agencies exerted special efforts for the rehabilitation of brick kilns, cement mills, glass, tile and other

During the first post-war year no apindustry but it spurted ahead in 1947 and the output of building materials mounted bordinated their national economic interests stages. The former plans to hold zonal met. Results this year are encouraging: which stand behind the Marshall plan. In didates for the world title have been disproduction of cement for the first five this manner the Western powers have put carded and quite rightly: the zonal events months was 37.% greater than during the themselves into a tight spot from which they would not have been equal in strength corresponding period of 1947, the output of are now vainly trying to get out, meanwhile and therefore the stronger player who

BELINSKY IN PARIS. Artist B. Lebedev depicts Belinsky (right) with his friends-Herzen, Natalya Herzen and Annenkov

Topics of the Day

(Continued From Page 1)

vantage to ourselves.

The British press is indignant over the A great many Kievites spent the day in is any sense in adopting curtailed "aid" from tournament of the chess world's Big Five Washington.

to the American decision the British govern- fined to the question of who is the world's sider worthy to take part in the tourna- ed a wave of furious attacks, and in a last ment will have to revise its program of im- strongest, although that in itself is important ment. First place in the list is credited with minute spurt scored the goal which staved more than 20,000 of whom spent the day in import restrictions on certain foodstuffs and ful international cooperation in this field.

Marshall plan was approved by Congress it has proven capable of not only making good plans, but also of carrying them out. American program of "aid" to Europe was Soviet Union a year ago when the governments of Britain and France endeavored to tournaments for the women's world title, draw all European nations into the frame- regular international team competitions developing economic ties between the court of subly at the International Chess Federies of Western and Eastern Europe with sion Congress this July at Stockholm. non-European countries on the basis of repreciable improvement was noticed in this ain and France, however, rejected the Sov-scheme for contesting the world champion-

Six Players Represent Soviet Union At Stockholm Chess Tournament

THE YEAR 1948 will go down in the victorious in another zone would have for the international championship orown. The "Observer" states that in retaliation | The significance of this event is not con-Never before did the International Chess The turn of events two months after the Federation enjoy such prestige as now, for This augurs well for the promotion of the based. That policy was condemned by the game and instills confidence that such splendid plans like the organization of work of the Marshall plan. At that time the and the setting up of a problemists' section Soviet Union insisted on the organization of to handle international composers' contests international economic cooperation by will be put into effect in the near future, at the International Chess Federa-

The year's event No. 2 is the Internaspect for the national sovereignty and eco- tional Tournament of 20 to start July 15 nomic independence of each country. Brit- at Stockholm. This is part of the general iet proposals. They chose a policy that su- ship title and is the first of the three long history of chess as the big turning been entered. The new scheme does away to discuss the question as to whether there mention the recently concluded match-democratic one. Eleven national chess organizations, members of the FIDE qualifications committee, have each given in a list of 20 world masters whom they con- minutes to go, last year's champions launch-20 points, second place 19, etc. The 20 obtaining the highest number of points are entered in the lists. This method meets with general approval in the chess world, able margin of 4:1. A rejuvenated lineup for besides really picking the world's finest it gives the rising generation from the various countries a concrete incentive to play their best: they have a clear goal

> The five prize winners of the tournament of 20 qualify for next year's Challen- playing a sound and steady game. They are ger Tournament, where they will contest the right to play the world champion for the international title in 1950 with the four unsuccessful participants of the recent match-tournament and Reuben Fine.

The official announcement of the entry is of great interest, for it sort of gives an teams who have been in the habit of taking appraisal of post-war chess successes and brings the world's foremost players to the burban recreation parks. Crowds flocked to sharply. The plan for the year was fully to the dictum of American monopolies tournaments which would produce canattention of the public. The list includes but have two hard-fought ties to their credit, representatives of 13 countries from nearly with Moscow Dynamo and Moscow Torpeall parts of the world: six from the USSR, do. two each from the United States and glass increased by 39% and of bricks by adapting themselves to the changing placed second in one zone would have demands of the United States.

Yugoslavia, and one each from ten other been left out of it while the weaker player countries. The inclusion of such a number countries. The inclusion of such a number Dynamo. The Leningrad Zenith blanked of players from the Soviet Union is another testimony of the world recognition of the country's strength in this field. Now the Dynamo. entire Soviet picked team takes part in the contests for the chess title of the world!

(USSR), Denker and Kashdan (USA), Najdorf (Argentina), Stahlberg (Sweden), mands?... The proprietor, like every par- ple which already possesses its own poets to the role of Byron and posed in satanic kases (Brazil), Trifunovic and Gligoric come out on top, because the sweltering (Yugoslavia), Tartakover (France), O'Kelly (Belgium), Yanofsky (Canada) and Book (Finland). Reserves: Lilienthal (USSR), from Sunny Georgia will have a welcome must explain the local and historical rea- him work and force him to starve to death. the flame of national life and the fresh vogue of spurious Byronism has already Stoltz and Lundin (Sweden) and Horo- ally, and there's no teling what surprises are > Here is what World Chess Champion Mikhail Botvinnik had to say about it in a recent interview: "The entire chess world is impatiently waiting for the tournament to start. It will be indeed, an inme personally, even for the mere reason slight margin. that after that the number of contenders for the world title will come down to making a bid for the title are playing the > official rating for the world's ten strongest future, then we are in for an extremely inplayers. We are confident that a good teresting race for the country's soccer share of this will fall to the Soviet Union. crown,

Sporting

THE COUNTRY'S sports scribes find themselves in a rather tight spot as the first 36 games, or more than a third of the first round of play for the soccer crown, has been covered. After all, everybody wants to know how things are going to pan out among the leading teams. So far most of the elevens are running neck and neck and, one guess is as good as another as far as picking the leader goes

But who has been putting the brakes on our strongest teams this season? It's the boys who've been hugging the bottom of the table last year who are making it tough for the top notchers this year.

Take the Minsk Dynamo eleven from Belorussia for instance. It has not figured as a serious contender for soccer laurels in the past; they finished next to the bottom of the table last year. But this year the Minsk lads have already become the talk of fans the country over. Here's the how and why of

When the Moscow Spartak eleven made their recent trip to Minsk, very few had any doubts as to the outcome-Spartak, of course, was the heavy favorite. But what actually happened was another story. Minsk Dynamo defeated Spartak by a 4:3 score. Many waived their hands, as if to say: Oh, well, that's just another one of those early season upsets.

But soon after that Minsk Dynamo arrived in Moscow for their scheduled game with last year's champions-Central House of the Red Army. That game, more than anything else, proved what the lads from Belorussia were capable of.

Towards the close of the first half Minsk Dynamo had a 2:0 lead over the Army team. Army got busy and, only towards the close of the first half, after making a furious drive at Minsk's goal posts, did they succeed in delivering their first blow.

The second half was tense in the extreme. In fact, it looked like Minsk was headed for another victory. But, with only three

In their next game with the Flyers' eleven, Minsk Dynamo won by the comfortplus inspired play has accomplished wonders for the Belorussian lads.

Several days ago I dropped in on the Moscow Dynamo team. That's the eleven which lost the 1947 soccer title to the Army by a hair. So far Moscow Dynamo has been determined to make the grade this year.

When I mentioned the name of their team brothers-Minsk Dynamo-they admitted that they are somewhat nervous about that game, Kuibyshev's Wings of the Soviets, like Minsk Dynamo, is also out to trip up the their opponents in their stride. The lads from Kuibyshev-on-the-Volga have so far

Then there is the Leningrad Dynamo which tied the fast Georgian eleven-Tbilisi Spartak with a 4:0 score.

So far there are only two teams who have not bitten the dust—Tbilisi and Moscow

Soccer fever is at a high pitch as the two undefeated teams are facing each other to-The entry is: Boleslavsky, Flohr, Kotov, day at the capital's Dynamo Stadium. Mos-Ragozin, Bondarevsky and Bronstein cow Dynamo has scored seven points out of four games played, while Tbilisi has eight points out of five games. The match looks like a toss up. A good many of the local fans weather during the past week has slowed down some of the boys. However, if old Sol continues to do his best today then the lads in store for the fans.

Close behind the leaders are the Central House of the Red Army with seven points out of five games, and nine points for Moscow's Torpedo out of six games played. In other words, the four teams now leading the teresting contest. It is also important for field are separated from each other by a

In short, the majority of the teams now game as they've never played before. If Yes, this tournament will provide the they'll manage to keep up the pace in the

New Provocation of Anglo-American Secret Agents

(Continued From Page 2)

precedented violence committed against him and in some way to extricate themselves from the soundalous affair that had received wide publicity. Tasoyev categorically refused to write any statement and demanded to be turned over to the Soviet Embassy in London.

guarding him and rushed out into the so he was repeatedly beaten up. In the street, entered the Olympia exhibition meantime the whole affair grew more and geoisie, the present makers of France's grounds and in the presence of a large crowd began to shout that he was a Soviet lieutenant colonel kidnapped by the British and Americans in Bremen, and asked to be directed to the Soviet Embassy in London. A policeman with the mark F-55 on his badge obligingly offered Tasoyev his serv-there. The agents of the Anglo-American

> While in prison from May 6 to 20, Ti- criminal actions rests with the Anglo-Amerisoyev every day addressed oral and written can military authorities in Germany.

demands to the police authorities and the British Foreign Office asking to be allowed to meet a representative of the Soviet Embassy or to inform the Soviet Ambassador in London of his whereabouts Instead of complying with Tasovev's legitimate de-mands, the British intelligence agents tried to persuade him not to return to the USSR but to sign some statement which they tried On May 6, Tasoyev eluded the Britishers to thrust on him, As Tasoyev refused to do more widely known. A scandal was brewing and to avoid it the British authorities, realizing that the provocation they had planned had failed found themselves compelled to ship Tasoyev back to Germany and turn him over to the Soviet authorities punished, and the responsibility for their

Belinsky's Appraisal of Eugene Sue's 'Les Mysteres de Paris' ter in a cold basement or freezing garret It no longer believes the windbags and the nounced the present and sworn them-

(Continued From Page 3)

such horrific epithet was also met Eugene Sue's novel in Paris: the author, then, would seem to have achieved his goal, his letter reached destination..."Les Mystères de Paris" even excited administrative debates without the sacrifices which it de-ment is spreading swiftly among the peo- of modern France. True, he once aspired slovakia), Lajos Steiner (Australia), Elistrative debates raincoats if only their favorite team would slovakia). reached destination..."Les Mysteres de in the Chamber of Deputies: so great was the novel's success....

people and the royal troops...

And what did the people, which had in reckless zeal shed its blood for a word, their conscience is clear, for are they not the constitutional market. Their conscient most needs. Describing the French people for an empty sound the meaning of which right within the law! The aristocracy does tious and energetic voice is terrible to the in his novel, Eugene Sue regards it from it had not understood itself—what did the not reason so: it is generous even in its buyers, sellers and shareholders of the the standpoint of a true-born bourgeois. people gain by it? Alas! Immediately after the July days this poor people was horrified to see that its position had not only not improved but was much worse than it had been before. Yet the whole of this historical comedy had been enacted in the name of the people and for the good of the people. The aristocracy had fallen for good and all; the bourgeoisie had stepped firmly into its place, succeeding to its whom the people sacrificed their lives! Ac- numerous voices are heard which look of the people: why deprive him of the firmly into its place, succeeding to its privileges but not to its culture, its elegant cording to the French charter only a proprietor who pays not less than four hundred upon intercession on behalf of the people capacity for commiseration—the more so that it has promised him such cersupercilious generosity and vain liberality towards the people. The French proletarian is equal before the law to the richest proprietaire and capitalist; both are tried by the same court, and, if guilty, punished the hands of the property-owners who did whose hero is represented by the people necessity, and become a well-fed, clean with the same punishment; but the trouble not sacrifice a single drop of blood for is only natural under the circumstances. and well-behaved mob, leaving the bouris that the proletarian is no better off for the charter, while the people have been And it is a cause for wonder that the spirit all this equality Eternally a worker for completely alienated from the rights of of speculation which possesses French the proprietor and capitalist, the proletar- the charter for which they had suffered. . literature had not thought of seizing upon most educated estate of speculators. ian is entirely in his hands, is eternally his But the sparks of goodness have not yet such an inexhaustible and certain source Eugene Sue shows in his novel how as his own premium... There is equality Sorrow has taught it wisdom and shown disgusted with the abomination of desola- entire system of French legislation, in the for you. And is it easier to die in the win- it the constitutional tinsel in its true light. tion in social morals, have voluntarily re- entire system of society....

with wife and children shivering from the fabricators of laws, and it will no more selves to selfless service of the future, slave, for the former gives him work and died out in France—they are merely cov- of profit before this!... arbitrarily fixes his payment for it. This ered up by the ashes and await a favor- Eugene Sue was this lucky man to sciously connive at corruption and crime; payment does not always suffice for the able wind that will blow them into a bright whom it first occurred to venture on a pro- and one must admit that he shows it very poor workman's daily bread and for the and pure flame. The people is a child: but fitable literary speculation in the name of cleverly and convincingly: what he does ices. However, instead of the Soviet Embas-intelligence service who committed this rags to cover himself and his family, the child is growing and promises to be- the people. Eugene Sue does not belong not suspect, however, is that the evil is sy he took him to the prison of the F police abominable act of violence must not go unwhereas the rich proprietor keeps 99% come a man full of strength and reason. to that little band of French literati who, latent not in this or that law, but in the division at 19 Broon Green Road.

cold and without having had anything to shed its blood for words whose meaning which they will probably not live to see eat for three days; is it easier to die with is obscure to it or for men who love it but whose advent they will have facilitata charter for which so much blood had only when they can use it as a cat's paw ed. No, Eugene Sue is a sober character venu, regards the workman in his blouse who premonstrate its future, sharing with novels of the genre of "Atar-Gull," "Hita-To make the Russian public more read- and wooden clogs as the planter regards it its sufferings and not dissociating from it either in dress or manner of life. It is booksellers and publishers were not running achieved by "Les Mysteres de Paris" we work for him; but he can refuse to give still weak, but it alone bears within itself after him with bags of gold. Moreover, the sons for this success. These reasons now The bourgeois proprietors are prosaically enthusiasm of conviction which has gone passed and Eugene Sue was at an age belong to history; politics have ceased to sober-minded men. Their favorite rule is: out in the sections of "educated" society. when men are more sensible and can come speak about them: consequently, they have every man unto himself. They want to see Today, moreover, it has true friends, men off the stilts. He always was a decent felalready become the subject of historical justice done by the civil law and will have who have linked their vows and hopes with criticism. The French charter was mod- nothing to do with the law of humanity its destiny, men who have voluntarily re- rate demon, but now he is quite a good ified by royal decree in 1830; the working and morality. They honestly pay the work- nounced participation in the mart of power sort, not at all priggish, a respectable class in Paris was fomented to unrest by man his wages which they themselves and money. Many of them enjoying Euro- bourgeois in the full sense of the word, the party of the middle estate (the bour- have fixed, and if those wages are insuf- pean repute as men of science and letters a philistine of constitutional-bourgeois geoisie). A struggle ensued between the ficient to save him and his family from live and work in self-appointed and honest civility, and if there were a chance of his death by starvation and he is driven by despair to become a thief or a murderer— poverty while possessing every means of becoming a deputy he would be precisely occupying a position in the foreground of one of those deputies which the charter vanity, by conventional habit. By the same administration—and that voice raised in simply as a hungry and ragged mob contoken it was always partial to intellect, defense of the poverty-stricken duped peo- demned by poverty and ignorance to a life talent, science and art and was proud ple sounds in the ears of the administra- of crime. He is ignorant of both true vice of the knowledge that it patronized them. tive entrepreneurs like the trumpet blast and true virtue among the people and The petty bourgeoisie of contemporary of doom. The moans of the people which does not suspect that it has a future which France imitates the aristocracy only in this voice promulgates to the world stir the triumphant dominant party no longer luxury and vanity which it manifests in a public opinion and therefore disturb the has because in the people there is faith and gross and vulgar manner like Moliere's men who speculate in government. To- enthusiasm, there is a moral power. bourgeois-gentilhomme. And that is for gether with these honest voices other more Eugène Sue sympathizes with the miseries dred francs in yearly taxes on real prop- means for overthrowing the ministry and tain profits? But how he commiscrates is erty can be an elector and candidate. occupying its place. Thus, in France the another matter. He would like the people Consequently, all the power and all the people has become a public political and not to be miserable, to cease being a huninfluence in the state are concentrated in administrative issue. The success of a novel gry, ragged mob partly criminal through laws, to remain the masters of France, the French laws themselves sometimes uncon-

Editor-in-Chief M. M. BORODIN